RESOURCES IN POSTSECONDARY

Asking for help: There is nothing wrong with reaching out when you need help or support. Many students experience bumps in the road.

Postsecondary institutions will have many different resources for students depending on the institution.

Here are some common places you can find help:

Student accessibility services

Assist students with registering their disability, determining appropriate accommodations, and identifying additional resources.

Writing center

Aids writers in the interpretation of writing assignments, prewriting development, and organization of ideas.

International student services

Provides advice and programs to support international students as they adjust to postsecondary

Success centers

Assists in referrals for campus resources, academic support, career exploration and other services

Financial aid office

Provides information about financial aid available.

Indigenous centres

Provide a culturally appropriate environment that encourages and supports the success of Indigenous students.

Libraries

Assist students with research.

Career center

Assists students with career planning and guidance.

Counselling centres

Short-term counselling services.

Faith and spirituality centres

Multi-faith centers for workshop

Academic advisors

To help with course selection and registration, schedule changes, and decision making

Learning center

Assists with tutoring and study skills instruction.